Presentation Strategies, RTP

With our heads tilted skyward we launch the Triangle Area A.I.R. show.

That's the Adobe Integrated Runtime.

For curious bystanders, Adobe's own Mike Chambers will be presenting and showing off AIR.

And for those brave application pilots we'll be awarding a copy of Flex 2 to the best of show.

Submit your AIR application to admin@rdaug.org by August 15th. Winners must be present to be eligible

Join the Carolina Adobe User Group, the Raleigh Durham User Group, and the Triangle Area Coldfusion User Group as the AIR bus (onair.adobe.com) makes a pit stop in the Triangle.

We'll also be showing off the best AIR apps from our members. The best entry gets a copy of Flex 2. Submit your AIR application to admin@rdaug.org by August 15th. AIR downloads and documentation are available at labs.adobe.com. Winners must be present at the meeting to receive their prize.

Presenter Mike Chambers has spent the last 8 years building applications that target the Flash runtime. During that time, he has worked with numerous technologies including Flash, Generator, .NET, Central, Flex, and Ajax. He is currently the senior product manager for developer relations for Apollo.
